

Pictured (L to R): Andrea Malcomb - Vice President, Historic Denver & Director, Molly Brown Museum; Roz Duman - Founder & Executive Director, CoAGG; and John Deffenbaugh - President & CEO, Historic Denver

Margaret "Molly" Brown Award

This October, Roz Duman, Founder and Executive Director of the Coalition Against Global Genocide, was honored with the Margaret "Molly" Brown Award at Historic Denver's 55th Annual Gala and Award's Dinner. Created to honor those who live in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown's" spirit, the award recognizes individuals who have devoted many years to civic life in all its forms, actively engaging themselves in politics, arts and cultural endeavors, philanthropy and historic preservation. Like Molly Brown, Roz is also known for her civic engagement and fearless activism. Her decades-long political and community roles have benefitted people, both near and far. In her current position, she drives awareness and action against genocide and crimes against humanity to prevent needless violence and human rights violations all over the world.

